Kidds Gully

From the Daylesford Information Centre, drive towards Hepburn Springs along Vincent Street/ Hepburn Road for 2km to High View Road on your right.

Walk down High View Road ignoring the first track on your left and the next on your right. Continue straight ahead, past houses on your right.

After about 10 minutes of walking, ignore the cross track and continue straight ahead. Watch your footing as the track has an irregular surface.

Ignore the track on your right after having walked for about 20 minutes. Continue on for a short distance and you will come to an intersection. Take the right hand track and continue downhill to a further intersection at the bottom of the hill.

Take the left hand track and follow it around to the left and then the right, ignoring the track on the left. The track now goes steeply downhill towards and over Spring Creek.

Follow the track around to the right to a very pleasant garden setting on the banks of the creek. This is a good place for a short rest.

Having rested, return uphill and follow the track around to the left. Ignore the first two streets on your right and continue to follow the track uphill. When you come to a “Y” intersection, take the track on your left that meanders past a house on your right and mullock hills on your left. Continue on to a short steep uphill section.

Keep to the track which climbs fairly steadily now until an intersection at the top of the hill. Just before you reach the intersection, there is a former mine site and large mullock hill on your left.

At the intersection, don't cross over, turn right and continue uphill a short distance until the track meets High View Road. Turn right and continue on to Hepburn Road and your car.
